

China in West Asia

Why in news?

\n\n

Beijing hosted the leaders of Saudi Arabia and Israel, in consecutive weeks.

\n\n

What happened during the meet?

\n\n

\n

- China and Saudi Arabia announced an investment cooperation deal worth $65 billion that will boost partnerships in fields such as energy, finance and aerospace.

\n

- Chinese President and Israeli PM vowed to strengthen cooperation in the technology and agriculture sectors.

\n

- Mr. Xi said peaceful coexistence between Israel and Palestine would be good for both parties and the region.

\n

- The Chinese have also urged Saudi Arabia and Israel to work together to attain peace.

\n

- China has also shown interest in the region beyond the economic sphere.

\n

- It is one of the supporters of the Bashar al-Assad regime in civil war-stricken Syria.

\n

- In the UN Security Council, China has consistently vetoed U.S.-backed resolutions on Syria,.

\n

- At the same time it offered to broker peace between rival factions.

\n

- China has also recognised Palestine as a state and offered support for the Palestinians

\n

\n\n

What is the significance?

\n\n

\n

- It signals the growing enthusiasm of China to deepen ties with the region.

\n

\n\n

\n

- China is interested because over the years China has built strong economic ties with countries in West Asia.

\n

- It is one of the top buyers of oil from Saudi Arabia and a key trading partner of Israel.

\n

- For Iran, Beijing remained a trusted ally even during the time of sanctions.

\n

\n\n

\n

- China's economic ties with West Asia assumed greater significance after the induction of One Belt, One Road initiative.

\n

- West Asia plays a major role in this Silk Road revival plan.

\n

\n\n

\n

- These moves indicate China is ready to end its strategic reluctance in dealing with West Asia and to adopt a gradualist proactive policy that suits its profile as a fast-rising global power.
