

Concerns in Urban Local Governments

What is the issue?

 $n\n$

\n

• It is quarter century since the creation of municipalities under 74th Constitutional Amendment Act.

\n

• It is imperative at this juncture to assess the progress of municipal governance in India.

\n

 $n$

What are the concerns?

 $n\n$

۱'n

• Limitations - Sates have fallen short of implementing the provisions of the 74th Amendment.

۱n

• There are concerns in underlying constitutional design of urban local governments (ULGs).

۱n

• Local governments are financially constrained.

\n

- $\bullet$  They do not have the administrative capacity to carry out its functions.  $\ensuremath{\backslash} n$
- $\bullet$  ULGs are increasingly disempowered and depoliticised as an institution.  $\ensuremath{\backslash n}$

 $n$

\n

- Power The elected representatives at the city-level are rendered powerless.
- $\bullet$  In most municipal corporations, the mayor is largely the ceremonial head.  $\ensuremath{^{\backslash n}}$
- The executive powers are vested with the State government-appointed commissioner.

\n

• This disjuncture in municipal governance has been exploited by State governments.

• Parastatal agencies - Various parastatal agencies are created by the State government.

\n

• These further deny municipal corporations their political role.

• E.g. urban development authorities (building infrastructure), public corporations (water, electricity, transportation services, etc)

• Even urban planning and land-use regulation is with State governmentcontrolled development authorities.

• These agencies function with certain autonomy.

• Moreover they are accountable only to the State government, and not the local government.

• Parastatal agencies and unelected commissioners are pre-74th Amendment legacies that have not been undone.

• Depoliticisation - There is increasing depoliticisation of local government in recent years.

\n

• These seek to ring fence projects from local government.

• E.g. Central government programmes such as the Smart Cities Mission. \n

• This programme mandates the creation of special purpose vehicles (SPVs) for Smart Cities.

• SPVs will have operational independence.

• They will have autonomy in decision making and implementation.

• State government can further delegate the decision-making powers available to the ULBs to the Chief Executive Officer of the SPV.

• Disempowerment - Even for performing functions that are within its purview, local government requires State government permissions.

• These include functions like levying local taxes or undertaking civic projects above a certain budget.

\n

• Municipalities are not yet autonomous units to be truly called as the "third tier" of government in India's federal system.

۱n

• The creation of parallel institutions further disempowers the elected local government.

\n

- It shows how higher levels of government distrust local politics.
- Functions Functions in 12th Schedule which a State government is expected to devolve to the local government should be relooked.
- $\bullet$  It does not include essential civic issues such as urban transportation, housing or urban commons.  $\mbox{\sc housing}$
- Civic activism This has often been focussed on the creation of two bodies mandated by the 74th Amendment.
- $\bullet$  They are the ward committees and metropolitan planning committees.  $\mbox{\ensuremath{^{\text{Nn}}}}$
- $\bullet$  However, there is an over-reliance on such semi-representative bodies.  $\ensuremath{^{\text{h}}}$
- This does not augur well for creating a genuinely democratic city government.
- Civil society's emphasis on nominating its members into ward committees can further depoliticise local governments.
- It could make them captive to the interests of certain elite resident welfare associations.

• Exceptions - The 74th Amendment contains an industrial township exception.

\n
• A municipality need not be constituted in areas which are declared as

- A municipality need not be constituted in areas which are declared as industrial townships.
- These provisions have been employed by State governments to keep local governments weak.
- Distribution The 73rd Amendment provides for three levels of panchayats at village, taluk, and district levels.
- Unlike this, power in urban areas is concentrated in a single municipal body.

 $\bullet$  It could be the municipal corporation, municipal council or town panchayat.  $\ensuremath{\backslash n}$

 $n\n$

What is the way forward?

 $n\n$

\n

• Local governments must be increasingly acknowledged as inherently political spaces.

\n

- $\bullet$  The present model of urban governance vesting power in a singular municipality should be relooked.  $\ensuremath{\backslash n}$
- Urban governance reforms should focus on political empowerment of local government that promotes local democratic accountability.
