What is the issue?

 $n\n$

\n

- Corporate funding of elections and campaigns has been dominating U.S. politics for the better part of past 100 years.
- But as a response to the ill effects of corporate clout over public policy, a new wave of community funded politics is emerging.
- In this context, the victory of "Alexandria Ocasio" in the democratic primaries (House of Representatives) is seen as the  $1^{\rm st}$  major success.

What is the significant development within the Democratic Party?

- A quiet movement against corporate funding in politics appears to be under way within the U.S. Democratic Party and is said to be gaining strength.
- Recently, the victory of "Alexandria Ocasio" in the primaries to secure a democratic ticket to the House of Representatives seen as a direct indication.
- Strikingly, Ms. Ocasio is said to have spent a mere $200,000 compared to his $3.4 million war chest of her experienced opponent Mr. Crowley.
- Importantly, Ms. Ocasio is said to have declined corporate donations throughout her campaign and was very pronounced in her socialist agenda.
- $\bullet$  Her progressive credentials also enabled her to strongly capitalise on the present hard-tactics employed by Mr. Trump against hapless immigrants. \n
- Considering the strategic significance, this win will likely reverberate through the Democratic Party, and possibly put the Republicans on notice as well.

How does the future look?

 $n\n$

\n

- $\bullet$  The emerging trend was first piloted on a large scale by Bernie Sanders during his unsuccessful 2016 presidential primaries.  $\mbox{\sc h}$
- While many politicians are already on board, the victory of Ms. Ocasio indeed marks a major milestone for socialist agenda within the U.S. polity.
- But merely drawing superficial conclusions based on the sporadic wins registered might not imply the movement as such is gaining momentum.
- Notably, the few wins registered by the movement have mostly been from multi-ethnic constituencies that have traditionally backed progressive politics.
