

Criminal law reforms

Why in news?

Recently, the government unveiled three new bills that will have significant transformation in the criminal justice system.

New bills

- Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita Bill 2023- To replace Indian Penal Code (IPC), 1860.
- Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita Bill 2023- To replace the Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC), 1973.
- Bharatiya Sakshya Bill 2023 -To replace the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.

What is the need for reforms?

- Updation- Since, Indian penal code was launched in 1860 during British colonial rule, it is outdated to the present context.
- Technology usage- Code of criminal procedure launched in 1861 didn't have much emphasis for technology usage.
- Address the delays- Indian Evidence Act, 1872 also needs reforms to the present day requirements, as it hampers speedy justice.
- Slow police investigations often result in catastrophic miscarriages of justice.
 - According to Supreme Court, "Speedy trial is one of the facets of the fundamental right to life and liberty enshrined in Article 21 of the Constitution.
- Promote transparency - The rich and the resourceful get better access to justice than the marginalised and the vulnerable.
- Speedy justice- Jails overflow with under trials and the slow moving courts are clogged with some 50 million cases.
 - According to a 2017 survey, nearly 60,000 cases are pending in the Supreme Court.
 - Equity deferred is denied equity.

THREE NEW BILLS

Indian Penal Code (IPC), 1860

TO BE REPLACED BY

Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita Bill, 2023

- It will have 356 sections (instead of 511 sections in IPC)
- 175 sections have been amended
- 8 sections have been added, and 22 sections have been repealed

Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC), 1973

TO BE REPLACED BY

Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023

- It will have 533 sections (instead of 478 sections in CrPC)
- 160 sections have been changed
- 9 sections have been added, and 9 sections have been repealed

Indian Evidence Act, 1872

TO BE REPLACED BY

Bharatiya Sakshya Bill, 2023

- It will have 170 sections (instead of 167 sections in IEA)
- 23 sections have been changed
- 1 section has been added, and 5 sections have been repealed

What are the advantages of the bills?

- Expansion- It brings offences like terrorism, corruption, mob lynching and organised crime under penal laws.
- Zero FIR- It allows people to register a police complaint in any police station, regardless of the location where the crime took place.
- ICT applications- They propose video recording of search and seizure operations and increased the use of electronic evidence and forensics during investigation.
- Community service- It is introduced as a new form of punishment.
- Sedition- The offence has been judiciously tempered to prevent misuse, facilitated by introducing a test for criminal intent.
- Speedy justice- They advocate video trials, and holding trials in absence of the accused.
- In line with Supreme Court ruling- It has excluded attempted suicide and adultery in the bills which aligns with the Supreme Court rulings.
- Undertrials - The Police Superintendent has to ensure that an application is made to the court to release undertrials who have completed 1/2 or 1/3rd of their maximum possible sentence.

What are the challenges associated with the bill?

- New definition of sedition- The new bill punishes acts endangering sovereignty, unity and integrity of India.

- It gives the police unchecked powers of arrest.
- Vague- The manner in which the offences are drafted continue to perpetuate the problem of vague criminal law provisions that worsen the risk of arbitrary arrests.
- The bills should have revisited the offences relating to religion and blasphemy.
- Borrowed legislations- Some of the new offences are borrowed from existing legislations on organised crime and the UAPA without clarifying the reasons for such borrowing.
- Criminalise speech- Offences including sedition and obscenity require reconsideration.
- Marital rape - It has not been criminalised despite India having tough laws to prevent sexual violence against women.
- Modesty- The terminology of "modesty" employed in the code for the offence of "outraging the modesty of a woman" should be taken out.
- Bail adjudication- The new Bills do very little to resolve the manner in which bail is adjudicated and accessed.
- Torture in investigation- Without appropriate changes in the evidence legislation on recovery evidence based on statements to the police, the institutional reality of torture will continue.
- Death penalty to mob lynching- Sentencing a mob to death doesn't seem like appropriate punishment.
- Retains outdated laws- The bills removed the reference to thugs and punishment for it as it is based on the Victorian morality, but have retained more than 80% of 160 year old IPC.
- Institutional challenge- The bills propose that every crime scene must undergo forensic investigation.
- Collection and analysis of forensic evidence along with the manner in which they are used in courts remain unaddressed.
- Issue with the committee - A committee was constituted in 2020 to undertake public consultations and recommendations.
 - It was a male dominated committee with lack of adequate representation.
 - The real information on the methodology adopted to process and analyse the submissions that were received is unavailable.
 - The Committee's recommendations are not in the public domain.
- Strategic power asset- The political executive has consistently sought to wield criminal law as a pre-emptive tool. The proliferation of this approach to criminal law raises legitimate concerns.
- Police custody- The period during which an arrested person can be sent to police custody has been expanded from 15 days to over 60 or 90 day period depending on the offence.
- International practices- Countries like Singapore, Malaysia, Sri Lanka and Bhutan are still using the colonial penal code.
- Singapore recently made amendments to update it and introduce present-day requirements.

What lies ahead?

- The criminal reform change must strike a delicate equilibrium between state security imperatives and individual freedom.

- The principle of equality and equitability is essential to check on criminal law reform and to ensure public trust.
- The effectiveness of the reforms will be tested on the basis of its impact on the vulnerable, the victims and the poor.

Committees for reform of criminal laws

- Malimath committee- It was formed in 2003 to bring reforms in the criminal justice system.
- The Committee recommended that the victim should be allowed to participate in cases involving serious crimes and also be given adequate compensation.
- Justice Verma panel- It was formed to ensure quicker trial and enhanced punishment for criminals accused of committing sexual assault against women. It submitted its report in 2013.
- Ranbir Singh committee- It was formed in 2020 to review three codes of criminal law
 - Indian Penal Code (IPC), 1860
 - Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC), 1973 and
 - Indian Evidence Act, 1872.
