

Demands for Creamy Layer in SC/STs

Why in news?

 $n\n$

The Supreme Court hears a petition to exclude the well offs among SCs and STs from reservation benefits.

 $n\n$

What are the concerns?

 $n\n$

\n

• There are concerns that the rich among the SC/STs were benefiting from the reservation policies.

۱n

• On the other hand, the intended deserving and impoverished population continue to be excluded.

۱n

- There is lack of percolation of benefits to nearly 95% members of these communities at the bottom, defeating the whole purpose.
- This is perpetuating the problem of rich-poor divide.
- It is also becoming a cause of social unrest, especially the Naxalite movements and the perennial problem of poverty.

What is the demand?

 $n$

۱'n

• The petition argues that no class or caste remained homogeneously backward across time.

\n

• Only the bottom sections of the caste continue to reel under disadvantageous condition.

\n

 $\bullet$  It thus calls for excluding the creamy layer of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes from reservation benefits.  $\mbox{\sc h}$

Is it legally valid?

 $n\n$

\n

- In 1992, a 9-judge Bench of the Supreme Court in the Indra Sawhney case (or the Mandal case) gave a verdict in this regard.
- $\bullet$  It upheld the caste-based reservation for the OBCs as valid.  $\ensuremath{\backslash n}$
- The court also said the creamy layer of the OBCs (those earning a specified income) should not get the benefits of reservation.
- However, it applied only to the OBCs and not the SC/STs.
- The current petition refers to a Constitution Bench's judgment in 2006.
- The judgement made value of assets of an individual claiming reservation as a criteria for deciding the creamy layer.
- $\bullet$  It is now for the court to decide on the issue of skewed benefits of measures intended for rooting out social and economic backwardness. \n
