

India's Stance on Israel-Palestine

What is the issue?

\n\n

Advocating the Israel-Palestine peace process is vital for India to restore its influence in West Asia.

How is India-Israel ties transforming?

\n\n

\n

- Traditionally India has aligned its decisions on UN Assembly and the bilateral ties with Israel based on a pro-Palestinian stance. \n
- In his visit to Israel last year, Indian PM Modi decided not to visit the Palestinian territories.
- The decision came from a determination to "de-hyphenate" relations with Israel and Palestine.
 - \n
- \bullet This means that India will have its bilateral strategic ties with Israel irrespective of its political stance on Israel-Palestine issue. \n
- This was underlined in the India-Israel joint statement, which did not refer to the two-state solution. \n
- It also did not mention the status of Jerusalem, and not even call for an early resumption of the Israel-Palestine peace process. \n
- \bullet India and Israel instead focussed on strengthening bilateral ties. \slashn
- Israel PM's upcoming visit to India will give this relationship an added fillip. \nphin

Is the transformation consistent?

∖n

\n\n

- \bullet India's statements and decisions are far from confirming to its claims of dehyphenated relations with Israel and Palestine. \n
- Modi is expected to raise the need to pursue the two-state solution with Mr. Netanyahu directly during the India visit.
- He is also expected to travel to Palestine in the next few months, and receive Jordanian King Abdullah II in New Delhi.
- At a recent Non-Aligned Ministerial, India's Foreign Minister called India's support to the Palestinian cause a "reference point" in its foreign policy. \n
- It was also affirmed that India's "expanding relations" in the region will "only strengthen the Palestinian cause". \n
- Above all, the shift was evident when India voted for a resolution criticising the U.S. for recognising Jerusalem as the Israeli capital. Click here to know more.

What was the need for such dynamic position?

\n\n

∖n

 India's position is explained as a desire to reassert its leadership role on the multilateral stage.

∖n

- This is in keeping with the special place and moral position India has always assumed on the peace process, and its support to a just solution. \n
