

Insurgency across the eastern frontier

What is the issue?

\n\n

\n

- Increasingly, co-operation among various militant groups has been noted in the north-eastern region.

\n

- This, combined with the porous boundary along Myanmar increases the challenge of effectively controlling these groups.

\n

\n\n

Why is the North-eastern region prone to insurgency?

\n\n

\n

- The seven sister states are predominantly tribal with some states having more than 90% tribal populations.

\n

- The forest laws since the British times became intrusive & drastically affected their livelihoods & culture.

\n

- The diversity within even small territories proved to be difficult to accommodate within the same political administration.

\n

- This led to numerous demands, ranging from more autonomy to complete independence.

\n

- The Bengali migration from present day Bangladesh to the north-east during 1947 & later has also added considerable resentment, that has shown up both in electoral & militant modes.

\n

\n\n

What are some of the prominent militant groups in the north-east?

\n\n

- \n
- NSCM - Nationalist Socialist Council of Nagaland, was formed to advance the Naga cause for sovereignty.
- \n
- This organisation has operations in the Naga inhabited regions of India & Myanmar, with easy cross border access.
- \n
- This group has had major splits. Issac-Muivah faction (NSCN - IM) is currently involved in peace talks with the Indian government, while the Kaplang faction with its major operations in Myanmar is designated as a terror outfit by India.
- \n
- ULFA - The United Liberation Front of Assam is operating to establish a sovereign Assam through an armed struggle.
- \n
- The Indian government banned it in 1990s & a severe crackdown was launched in 2010, which considerably brought down their numbers.
- \n
- Some other organisations of significance are Mizo National Front and National Liberation Front of Tripura.
- \n

\n\n

What is the current situation?

\n\n

- \n
- Insurgency-related fatalities in the north-east had indeed reached a 20-year low in 2016, suggesting that a degree of peace and stability being restored.
- \n
- The peace process between the Government of India and the NSCN - IM also appeared to hold firm.
- \n
- Also, the already existing ceasefires with other groups have been extended for another year.
- \n
- However, substantial challenges remain in confronting the remaining non-ceasefire signatory groups such as ULFA - I, NSCN-K and the CorCom umbrella group.
- \n
- These groups have increasingly shifted their strategies towards the conduct of cross-border strikes in areas adjacent to the international border.

\n

- They are also increasingly carrying out co-ordinated attacks on the Indian defence establishments now.

\n

- They are an indication of increasing desperation due to the success of counter insurgency actions.

\n

\n\n

What are significance of the Myanmar border?

\n\n

\n

- The Sagaing region across the India-Myanmar border has long provided sanctuary for armed groups, while simultaneously offering opportunities for networking and operational coordination.

\n

- NSCN-K signed a ceasefire agreement with Myanmar in 2012.

\n

- As it attempts to retain operational relevance in India, the areas of India in proximity to Myanmar along the border districts in Arunachal Pradesh, Manipur & Nagaland has attained a newfound significance.

\n

- Since the NSCN-K abrogated its 14-year ceasefire agreement with the Indian government in April 2015, the group has conducted major attacks in conjunction with its allies from within these networks.

\n

- e.g the ambush on an Indian Army convoy in Manipur's Chandel district.

\n

\n\n

How can the issue be addressed?

\n\n

\n

- Two governments are considering deepening cooperation in checking the misuse of the 16 km visa-free zone on either side of the international border.

\n

- Furthermore, the use of cross-border "surgical strikes," such as those conducted in the immediate aftermath of the Chandel ambush can be considered.

\n

- Local support is important to intercept incoming parties of NSCN-K, ULFA-I and other allied militants.

\n

- Offers for rehabilitation to NSCN-K militants of Indian origin were announced recently, which is a positive move.
