

Misuse of Unlawful Activities Prevention act - II

Why in news?

\n\n

\n

- Numerous activists were arrested recently on the grounds of their links with Naxalism under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act.

\n

\n\n

What are the problems with the act?

\n\n

\n

- It sanctions the long-term deprivation of personal liberty even before an individual is found guilty.

\n

- Also, finding of guilt or innocence itself entails an extraordinary amount of discretion.

\n

- This discretion is vested both in the prosecution and in the trial judge who hears and decides the case.

\n

\n\n

What are the issues with its provisions?

\n\n

\n

- The act punishes both “unlawful activities” and “terrorist acts”, but the definitions tend to overlap.

\n

- In Professor G.N. Saibaba case, six persons were sentenced to life imprisonment on charges against their membership of the banned CPI(M) and its “front organisation” (the Revolutionary Democratic Front).

\n

- But the act does not define what a “front organisation” is, or what makes an organisation a “front” of a banned unlawful or terrorist group.
\n
- Also, UAPA uses terms that overlap with each other-
\n

\n\n

\n

1. Section 20 criminalises “membership” of a terrorist organisation
\n
2. Section 38 uses the terms “associating” or “professing to be associated” with a terrorist organisation.
\n
3. Section 39 criminalises “support” to a terrorist organisation, which also includes organising a “meeting” to support the terrorist organisation.
\n

\n\n

\n

- Thus, the UAPA creates a climate in which the focus shifts from individuals and crimes to groups and ideologies.
\n

\n\n

What are the related judicial pronouncements?

\n\n

\n

- The Supreme Court has held that the word “membership” has to be restricted to active incitement of violence.
\n
- This implies that a mere possession of books or attendance at meetings will not be counted as an offence under the act.
\n
- In Kabir Kala Manch case, the Bombay High Court rejected the argument that the “ideology” itself was contagious.
\n
- Barring these judgements, the dominant approach remains the one that is antithetical to individual liberty.
\n

\n\n

What should be done?

\n\n

\n

- Provisions of UAPA suggest that our state has begun to relish the crackdown on dissent under the cover of combating terrorism.

\n

- It is necessary that the rule of law would act as a protector of individual liberty.

\n

- Also, a constraint upon state power is needed when the temptation to view dissent as treason is at its highest.
