

North American Free Trade Agreement

Why in news?

\n\n

U.S. and Canada pulled back from a standoff regarding the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA).

\n\n

What is NAFTA?

\n\n

\n

- NAFTA came into effect in 1994.

\n

- It is a successor to the Canada-United States Free Trade Agreement.

\n

- NAFTA is a trilateral arrangement that includes Mexico.

\n

- It led to lower tariffs on most goods and services traded among the countries.

\n

- It encouraged big business to reorganise supply chains around the North American continent.

\n

- This eventually made industries such as automobiles globally more competitive.

\n

- Overall, regional trade has expanded more than three times since NAFTA came into effect.

\n

- The agreement has also led to a range of rules on food safety, intellectual property rights and the settlement of disputes.

\n

- It has generally deepened the political relationship among the three signatories.

\n

\n\n

What is the contention?

\n\n

- \n
- There is difference of opinion on the specific benefits NAFTA has brought to the US.
- \n
- Trump continued to blame NAFTA for the trade deficit with Mexico.
- \n
- He also linked it to the loss of American jobs.
- \n
- The US President intended to sign a revised trade agreement with Mexico.
- \n
- It was conveyed that revised agreement would be signed with Canada if it was willing.
- \n
- Recently, the three countries began talks on overhauling the agreement.
- \n
- They sought to address issues around labour, environment, etc.
- \n
- Besides, changes necessitated by the expansion of new online businesses were also addressed.
- \n
- It was soon announced that a deal had been reached with Mexico that would make NAFTA more fair.
- \n
- But Canada was not showing any signs of consensus.
- \n
- It was thus said the US administration would decide whether to have Canada or sign a separate deal.
- \n
- The tussle thus threatened to lead to Canada's exclusion from the NAFTA.
- \n

\n\n

What is the US-Mexico deal?

\n\n

- \n
- The updated deal between Mexico and the US includes some new clauses.
- \n
- These cover intellectual property, digital trade and investor disputes.
- \n
- It was agreed that for a product to be tax-free, 75% of it must be manufactured in the two countries.

\n

- This is a higher floor than in the existing agreement.

\n

- The deal also says that 40-45% of every vehicle must be built by workers who earn at least $16 per hour.

\n

- This is to ensure that firms don't find it profitable to move production to Mexico.

\n

- It's because wages are lower in Mexico than in the US, which might lead to skewed location preferences.

\n

\n\n

Why is Canada opposing?

\n\n

\n

- The US and Canada have been unable to agree on several issues.

\n

- These include:

\n

\n\n

\n

i. barriers that Canada places on the import of dairy

\n

ii. Canadian rules on movies, books and other media

\n

iii. the mechanism to settle trade disputes

\n

\n\n

\n

- Canada wants to ensure its publishing and broadcasting industries are not overrun by bigger US rivals.

\n

- It also wants to ensure that dairy imports did not pull down prices for its own farmers.

\n

- Another area of disagreement is the so-called Chapter 19 of NAFTA.

\n

- It deals with the mechanism for dispute resolution.

\n

- It allows the signatory countries to challenge one another's anti-dumping and countervailing duty decisions before a committee.
\n
- The committee has members from each country that is part of the dispute.
\n
- Notably, in the mid-2000s, the dispute resolution panels ruled repeatedly against the US.
\n
- This eventually strengthened Canada's negotiating position.
\n
- The US has reportedly eliminated the Chapter 19 provision in the agreement with Mexico.
\n
- But Canada has insisted on retaining the provision.
\n
- It is to be noted that anti-dumping or countervailing duties can be challenged at the WTO as well.
\n
- However, the fact is that countries sometimes ignore WTO decisions.
\n

\n\n

What now?

\n\n

- Despite Trump's tough stance, the US negotiators have decided to keep negotiating.
\n
- This is primarily due to the fact that the US Congress wanted any revised deal to include both Canada and Mexico.
\n
- This is because Canada is the major export destination for 36 US states.
\n
- So there are demands that the decisions "do no harm" to the deal.
