UNESCO 1970 Convention

Recently, the pressure on European museums to return artefacts taken from Southeast Asia during colonial times is growing.

- 1970 Convention - It refers to 'Means of Prohibiting and Preventing the Illicit Import, Export and Transfer of Ownership of Cultural Property'.

1970 Convention defines 'Cultural Property' as 'a property designated by countries having importance for archaeology, prehistory, history, literature, art or science'.

- It is the principal legal source when a country makes a claim to have its possessions returned.
- Launch - It came into force in 1972.
- State Parties - 144, India ratified in 1977.
- Objectives - To urge States Parties to take measures to prohibit, prevent the illicit trafficking and return the cultural property.
- To provide a common framework for the States Parties on the measures and to safeguard the identity of peoples and promote peaceful societies.
- Principles - Prevention, restitution and international cooperation.

UNESCO 1970 Convention is fully in line with the Sustainable Development Goals defined in the United Nations 2030 Agenda.

- Limitations - It does not apply retrospectively, so it does not include the peak phase of colonialism.
- Ownership approval - The requesting State Party shall furnish, at its expense, the documentation and other evidence necessary to establish its claim for recovery and return.
- Significance of returning artefacts - It can provide significant soft-power benefits for European countries in their extension of influence in regions such as Southeast Asia.

- Before Independence - Antiquities (Export Control) Act of 1947 ensured that “no antiquity could be exported without license.”
- After Independence - Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act was enacted in 1958.
- The Antiquities and Art Treasures Act was enacted in 1972 (AATA), implemented from April 1, 1976.
- Item-67 of the Union List, Item-12 of the State List, and Item-40 of the Concurrent List of the Constitution deal with the country’s heritage.
