New Proposal of Election Commission

\n\n

\n

- EC has urged the law ministry to amend election laws to include failure to clear dues of public utilities as a disqualification from contesting Lok Sabha and assembly polls.

\n

- The dues include government house rent, electricity and power bills etc.

\n

- Barring candidates will require amendment to the chapter-III of the Representation of the People Act (RPA) which deals with electoral offences.

\n

- However, the Government has rejected the proposal.

\n

- The rationale behind the rejection was the authority issuing the no-dues certificate to a candidate could be biased and may not give the required papers.

\n

- In cases of dispute on the dues, the matter could be referred to a court and may take time to settle.

\n

- In such cases, it would not be desirable to deny the candidate with the no dues certificate.
