Polygamy in India

Recently, Uttarakhand government has passed Uniform Civil Code bill and bans polygamy.

- Polygamy - It is the practice of having more than one married spouse (wife or husband).

The last major Indian government study on polygamy was conducted in 1974, which had found that Buddhists, Jains and Hindus had higher rates of polygamy than Muslims.

- Census 2011 - There are 28.65 crore married men in India, compared to 29.3 crore married women whose difference can be either due to incidence of polygamy or by men going abroad.
- In absolute value, it is high among Hindus followed by Muslims while in % of population to the total population, Muslims lead followed by Christians.
- NFHS - It asks women a more direct question regarding polygamy and found to be highest among Christians followed by Muslims.
- Overall, Scheduled Tribes reported the highest incidence at 2.4%.
- IIPS Study - International Institute of Population Sciences (IIPS) analysed data from the NFHS-3, NFHS-4 and NFHS-5 in 2022.
- It showed that polygynous marriages (1 man married to more than 1 woman at a time) have decreased from NFHS-3 to NFHS-5, among the whole population.
- The sharpest dip is among Buddhists.

- Limitations - Census does not directly collect data, and the most recent census was held in 2011, more than a decade back.
- Unlike the census, NFHS does not look at the whole population, NFHS-5 (2019-21) sampled approximately 6.1 lakh households, less than 1% of the total number of households in India.

Laws governing Polygamy in India

- The Parsi Marriage and Divorce Act 1936 - Prohibited polygamy in the Parsi community.
- Shariat Act 1937 - Governs the marriage in Islam. The act allows Muslim man to have 4 wives.
- The Special Marriage Act 1954 - A radical legislation that proposed the requirement of monogamy.
- The Hindu Marriage Act 1955 - Outlawed the concept of having more than one spouse.

The State of Goa has its own Uniform Civil Code which allows bigamy of Hindu man under specific circumstances mentioned in their code.
