

RBI's Fourth Bi-monthly Monetary Policy Review 2017

What is the issue?

\n\n

\n

- The latest monetary policy review came amid hopes that the RBI would ease interest rates to boost economic growth.

\n

- But the RBI has laid the onus of growth squarely on the government while retaining inflation control as its primary concern.

\n

\n\n

What is the background?

\n\n

\n

- Retail inflation has gone up by around 2% since the Monetary Policy Committee's last meeting.

\n

- Growth is decelerating and is expected to slow down further.

\n

- These two factors explain RBI's decision to hold back reduction in the repo rate - the rate at which the central bank lends out.

\n

- Repo-rate reduction would have increased liquidity in the economy at a time when growth isn't supportive - which might increase inflation.

\n

\n\n

How do the estimates look?

\n\n

\n

- RBI slashed its estimate of the full year growth rate to 6.7%, as against 7.3% earlier.

\n

- It also marginally increased the CPI based inflation estimate to 4.2-4.6% for the second half of the financial year.

\n

- 5.7% growth of the gross domestic product in the first quarter of the current financial year is worrying.

\n

- When substantial parts of the global economy, are registering economic expansion, India's economy seems to be slowing down.

\n

- The outlook for world trade in 2017 is also looking up, but India seems set to miss out on this.

\n

- This is in stark contrast to the perception a few years ago, when India was seen as the "only bright spot" in the global economy.

\n

\n\n

How can the slowdown be addressed?

\n\n

\n

- It is not clear whether the ongoing slowdown is a result of disruptions due to demonetisation & GST.

\n

- Long-term structural hurdles such as the banking crisis due to NPAs could also be the primary cause.

\n

- While, trying to address NPAs, RBI has also stressed the need to revive the demand for credit & private sector investment.

\n

- The festive season ahead and the upcoming 'Pay Commission' award for government employees is hoped to boost demand.

\n

- The government should focus on further economic reforms while improving the quality of its own spending for facilitating growth.

\n

\n\n

\n\n

Source: Business Standard

\n

SHANKAR
IAS PARLIAMENT
Information is Empowering