 $n\n$

\n

• The 'Death Penalty in India: Annual Statistics Report 2018' was prepared by the National Law University, Delhi.

\n

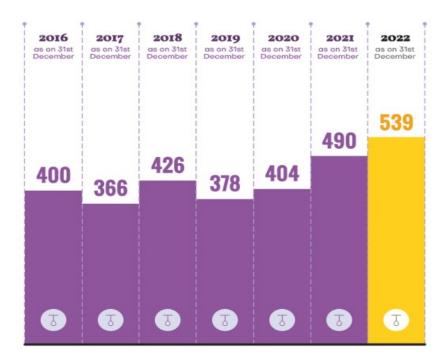

• The 162 death sentences by trial courts in 2018 are the highest in a calendar year since 2000.

۱n

- In 2017, capital punishment was accorded to 108 persons.
- No death sentences were pronounced in 8 states (Arunachal Pradesh, Goa, J&K, Meghalaya, Mizoram, Nagaland, Sikkim, and Tripura).

What is the possible reason for the rise?

 $n\n$

\n

• The increase in the number of death sentences could be the result of the recent legislative intervention.

\n

- ullet It extended capital punishment to non-homicide crimes (homicide murder).
- The Parliament amended the Indian Penal Code (IPC) to provide for death as a possible punishment in cases of rape and gangrape of girls below the age of 12.

\n

• Notably, after stricter law on child rape, death sentences hit two-decade high.

\n

 $n\n$

What is the case with Madhya Pradesh?

 $n\n$

\n

• Among states that invoked the IPC amendment, Madhya Pradesh did so in the highest number of cases involving child sexual assault.

• This resulted in death sentences to 22 people in 2018, of whom 7 were sentenced in cases concerning sexual assault of girls below 12 years not involving murder.

\n

 In contrast, only 6 had been accorded the death penalty by sessions courts in MP in 2017.

\n

 \bullet The MP government has also introduced a rewards scheme for public prosecutors who seek the death penalty. $\mbox{\ensuremath{^{\text{NP}}}}$

 A points system is now in place wherein 100 to 200 points is awarded for maximum punishment at lower courts, 500 for a life sentence and 1,000 for obtaining a death sentence.

\n

- Accordingly, titles like "Best Prosecutor of the Month" and "Pride of Prosecution" are bestowed on those earning more than 2,000 points.
- Those who make less than 500 are issued a warning.

How has judiciary approached death penalty?

 $n\n$

\n

• The Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of capital punishment in Bachan Singh case (1980).

\n

• But since then, there have been demands for re-examining the need for death penalty.

\n

• The Court could previously dismiss the Special Leave Petitions (SLPs) without giving any reasons ('in limine' dismissals) and not admitting them to be heard as appeals.

\n

- But such dismissals became constitutionally untenable after the ruling in Mohd Arif v The Registrar, Supreme Court.
- The SC's judgment in Babasaheb Kamble v State of Maharashtra is another significant development in the death penalty jurisprudence.
- The Court through its judgment in Kamble in November 2018 finally did away with 'in limine' dismissals of SLPs in death penalty cases.

• The Court held that review petitions in death sentence cases will mandatorily be heard in open court.

\n

 The SC also recognised the right of death row prisoners for meeting mental health professionals at a reasonable frequency and for reasonable lengths of time.

\n

 $n\n$

What is the government's stance?

 $n\n$

\n

- \bullet There is an enthusiasm in the government for legislative expansion of capital punishment, in contrast to the apex court's approach. \n
- Besides legislating for death in child sex assault cases, the POCSO Act was also amended.

۱n

• It introduced death penalty for penetrative aggravated sexual assault on children below the age of 18.

\n

- Also, in August 2018, a Bill was introduced, providing for the death penalty or life imprisonment for crimes involving piracy at sea.
- \bullet India also voted against the UN General Assembly's draft resolution proposing a ban on the death penalty. $\mbox{\sc h}$

What does the report call for?

 $n\n$

\n

- \bullet The circumstances of the convicted individual are to be viewed in the context of their entire lives and location in society. \n
- It is in this complex undertaking of contextualising an individual that assistance from a mental health professional becomes crucial.
- \bullet It can offer significant insights during the sentencing process. $\mbox{\ensuremath{\backslash}} n$
