What is the plan of UP's express highway?

 $n\n$

\n

• Running 354 km, Express highway will complete a link by expressways between UP's east and west.

۱n

- Expressways from Noida in the west to Agra (165 km), and then from Agra to Lucknow (302 km), are already in place, before this extends to Ghazipur in the east, a total of over 800 km.
- $\bullet$  There is a proposal to link the expressway to Varanasi which will run through Azamgarh.  $\$
- Being built at Rs 23,000 crore, it is expected to cut travel time between Lucknow and Ghazipur down to  $4\frac{1}{2}$  hours, from the current 6 hours.

What is the status of the expressway?

 $n\n$

\n

• Earlier in 2016 the then UP government has laid the foundation stone ahead of the Assembly elections, but the government had not acquired even half the land.

\n

- After the present state government took charge, it cancelled the earlier tender citing lack of land as the reason.
- Ahead of the Lok Sabha elections, the government has revived the project, making a few changes in the alignment, and replacing the name "Samajwadi Purvanchal Expressway" with simply "Purvanchal Expressway".

Connectivity Plans

 $n\n$

\n

- When the first tender was floated in November 2015, the proposal was to connect Lucknow to Ballia on the Bihar border.
- After a review, the plan was limited until Ghazipur in order to reduce the extent of clearances that would have been required.

- $\bullet$  The initial six packages (stretches) were increased to eight packages.  $\ensuremath{^{\backslash n}}$
- $\bullet$  The new government changed the name and cancelled the tenders allotted on the ground that less that 40% land had been acquired.  $\$
- The government, however, cancelled the process again, hoping to lower the construction cost further.
- $\bullet$  Ahead of the Azamgarh event, government sources said they expect to complete the tender process soon.  $\$
