Why in news?

\n\n

U.S President recently announced his new Afghan strategy.

\n\n

How did U.S Strategy evolve?

\n\n

- \n
 - Launched with the full support of the international community in 2001 after 9/11 by President George Bush.
- \n
 - The end objective of a stable and peaceful Afghanistan began to recede as the Taliban launched their insurgency in 2005 after they had recovered and regrouped themselves in Pakistan.
- \n
 - After 16 years, Afghanistan remains America's longest war, having spent more than $800 billion and losing nearly 2400 troops, with no victory in sight.

\n\n

How did the Obama years look?

\n\n

- \n
 - After taking over in 2009, Obama described the Afghan war as "a war of necessity" & authorised a surge in U.S. troop presence from 55,000 in early 2009 reaching 100,000 in 2010.
- \n
 - The objective was to gain a decisive victory over the insurgency with a time bound drawdown that would commence in 2011.

\n

- By the fall of 2014, only 8,400 U.S. soldiers and another 5,000 from other allies stayed behind to “advise, train and assist” the Afghans.

\n

- It was expected that from 2014, the Afghan security forces would robustly take charge of all combat operations, which however has been proving to be lacklusture.

\n

- So, the completion war which was supposed to happen by 2016, was put on hold and passed on to the next president.

\n

\n\n

How is the Trump era taking shape?

\n\n

\n

- Trump has been a vocal supporter of complete withdrawal for long but the American establishment’s view prevailed against his instincts as with Obama.

\n

- A hasty withdrawal would create a vacuum that would facilitate the resurrection of Taliban & 20 other U.S.-designated terrorist groups.

\n

- So, modest increase of 4000 troops was ordered without any time frame for withdrawal.

\n

- Mr. Trump has made it clear that the purpose of the U.S. military presence “is not nation-building”, but “killing terrorists”.

\n

\n\n

Does it make a dramatically different plan?

\n\n

\n

- US recognises that the elimination of external sanctuary and support to the insurgents is essential for success.

\n

- Afghan-oriented militant groups, including the Taliban and Haqqani Network, retain freedom inside Pakistani territory and benefit from support from elements in the Pakistani Government.

\n

- Although these discoveries aren't new, an open acknowledgement of this by a U.S. President is new.

\n

- Trump has described that the U.S. can no longer be silent about Pakistan's safe havens for terrorist organisations.

\n

- He has also indicated determination to further develop a strategic partnership with India and appreciated India's important contributions to stability in Afghanistan.

\n

\n\n

Will Pakistan continue to hold primacy?

\n\n

\n

- As long as the U.S. maintains a military presence in Afghanistan, geography determines its dependence on Pakistan for supply routes.

\n

- The other possible access routes are through Iran or through Russia and Kyrgyzstan neither of which is currently feasible.

\n

- Consequently, Mr. Trump's policy reflects more continuity than he is willing to acknowledge.
