

Education in India is provided by both public and private sector and funded by centre, state and local. The primary education in India is based by the Constitution of India in the Fundamental Rights.

Apart from traditional textbooks, blogs, etc.. Indian Government has launched a Scheme called SWAYAM. This scheme enables the Indians to access online education without any fee. Irrespective of low digital Infrastructure and lack of digital knowledge, our country has the highest number of online enrollments.

Mass Open online Courses can benefit the rural mass in providing access to a higher standard of knowledge.

The SWAYAM Scheme is provided in 4 quadrants

- * Video lectures
- * Study material which can be downloaded & printed.
- * Discussion forums to clear doubts

* Self-evaluation test by quizzes.

It can also benefit the working population who can improve their knowledge without affecting the career.

Mass open online courses are a boon to the poor and the deprived. The Government should take necessary steps to make sure it reaches the every corner of the country by setting of Digital Center in all rural areas without Digital network.
