

* Social problems

The people migrating from villages did not have any place of residence.

They slept and lived at whatever places they found.

The cities started to crowd and the risk of health problems were at an alarming rate.

People were prone to numerous health related problems.

* Housing

The housing facilities provided to the workers were unhealthy and dirty.

The people resided in crowded slums and accidents, disease and epidemics were common.

* No Social Security

The employer had the power to dismiss the worker at anytime without any reason.

If the employee was ill or he suffered an accident on the working site, he got no help from the employer.

* Child Labour

Child labour was widely prevalent in the industries.

Children between 8-15 years were employed and made to work for 15 hours a day.

Less wages were only provided to them.

Injuries and health issues were common to the children.

Thus the industrial revolution led to the division and exploitation of the society.
