

Is it necessary for India to intervene in the recent military coup issues of Myanmar? critically Analyse.

India and Myanmar have old history along with cultural ties, economic ties and defence ties.

Military Coup issue in Myanmar

→ In 1990 the military coup was done before which impact on

- Rohingya Crisis
- Large numbers of Migrants
- Failure of Constitution and amendment on regular basis
- Loss of freedom (or) Democracy
- Economic disadvantage and etc.

→ In 2010 the democracy started gaining its spreading its leg. but failed due to loss of elect Military appointed Party.

→ In 2020 the coup occurred due to the failure of USDP party of Myanmar which was backed by Military.

→ Military fear that NLD win can cause to lose their hand on govt. and will re-gain the pre-status of military before 1990.

★ Intervention of India in Myanmar

Advantage

- Good, ^{help in} ~~to~~ increase ties,
- help to build people to people contact
- Increase global presence, especially in ASEAN Nation & region
- Give competition to China.
- Help to increase ties with Myanmar Govt and People
- Help to increase in Act East Policy

Disadvantage

- Faces Military Criticism.
- May be cease fire from Army of Myanmar, to take revenge.
- Loose Support during N.E counter operation (from Military)
- NE, Counter insurgency will increase and supported by Military of Myanmar
- Help China to increase infiltration and terrorism support

★ Conclusion way Forward :-

Democracy should be restored by providing extra support in other way like?

- (i) putting external pressure around global
- (ii) Stopping supply chain and forcing to restore democracy.
- (iii) Increasing military Build up near border and making request to restore democracy.
