

Ans:

Recent confrontation between US and Iran has forced us to remember how these type of issues has led the world to huge losses in the history. e.g World wars.

This led the US to make stringent sanctions against Iran as following:

- Not extending the waivers of the countries importing oil from Iran (like China, India Japan) by US.
- Sanctions against foreign companies doing business with Iran
- Curbing Iran's nuclear deal and Uranium enrichment
- Iran to stop all support to the local agencies which are considered as terrorists by US.
- Iran to end building ballistic missiles and nuclear missile system

Now the question is will Iran accept these sanctions or US will decide to get out of nuclear deal or the world is going to face the following consequences:

- (i) Various countries of the world like India depends on Iran for oil import. US sanction will make the already shattered economy of the world worse.
- (ii) Having the confrontation enhanced if Iran attacked the strait of Hormuz for its defence, it will shatter the economy of West Asia completely.
 - (a) Effecting the Import/Export via Chabbarport, INSTC.
 - (b) Regular economic activities will get affected
 - (c) West Asia will be treated as football between US and Iran.
- (iii) Iran allies like Syria might get involved which also has no good relations with US leading to a worldwide war.

India basically will get effected alot as it has its huge import/export at stake with west Asia and US also (the only largest ~~export~~ exporter of India)

Keeping Past in mind (when US ~~forced~~ forced the world to remove their ties with North Korea but latter US made its relation well with N. Korea) India must not take any extreme action.

The only solution to prevent the disastrous consequences is the talk between Iran and US. If needed, major economies of the world must interfere especially, the countries involved in JCPOA.