

The current current in Pak could present a new challenge to already strained relation btw Ind - Pak. Critically examine

Pakistan is about to see a coalition government as neither of the two parties got a majority. India needs to watch on the political developments as we share a not so good relations.

Strained relations Terrorism has been the pivotal tension between the two countries. India enacted the most-favoured nation status and the trade between countries reduced from $800 million to $300 million.

Kashmir issue has been burning, since the abrogation of Article 370 Pakistan's blockade has been higher.

The new regime is suspected to be supported by the army which can pose new challenges to India.

Challenges to India - Water sharing

The talks on the Indus Water Treaty is in limbo and the powersharing can further delay the water negotiations.

Chinese influence in the region can increase as Pakistan is already facing high inflation and low forex reserves.

The resumption of CPEC - China-Pakistan Economic Corridor can be an assault on our sovereignty.

State sponsored terrorism can see a upsurge along with drug trafficking. This can cause internal security escalation in India.

Future

The regional stability of South Asia rests with peace between India and Pakistan. Any new developments in Pakistan must be handled by India in a productive way wholly benefiting Bharat.
