

The role of Non-governmental organization is crucial in providing better health care facilities at grass-root level in rural India. Substantiate

Non governmental organizations are non profit entities independent of government influence works towards environmental, social, human rights and many more goals.

As health care system of rural India exposed during pandemic in lack of human resource (14% defect in nurses), medical devices (ventilators) and no. of beds, NGO's can play crucial role in following ways

1] Hospital/health infrastructure

* NGO's can raise fund to develop rural health infrastructure

* Pursue & collaborate with universities, hospital

& bring health expert & local youths to provide service in rural areas

* Organize health camps, mobile hospitals in unserved & underserved remote areas

2] Sanitation

* They can work on to reach <sup>out</sup> government programme like swaccha bharaath Abhyan

* Train rural youth & promote them to form "Rog Kalyan Samitis" in monitoring govt. hospitals

* Train youth in digital literacy which helpful in vaccination, Tele health service, and registering beneficiaries in govt schemes

3] Nutrition

* Conduct independent survey in several areas & report the govt on what need to done

Ex:- No. of undernourished children in remote areas, Anemic girls etc

* Suggest govt regarding type of nutrition based on food habit, staple diet of rural population

* Create awareness in schools & colleges about nutrition intake, also help beneficiaries to get the service

Government of India need to promote NGOs who works on rural healthcare.
